Access Services

The Dean's Preface

A note from Dean of the Libraries, Brooke Cox

Libraries are full of stuff including everything from books to study rooms. Access Services is the group that oversees all of the stuff and the space it inhabits. Access Services staff make sure the books are in good order on the shelves, that signage throughout the building gets you where you need to go, they make the checkout process work for our materials and for the things we get for you from other libraries.

2,042

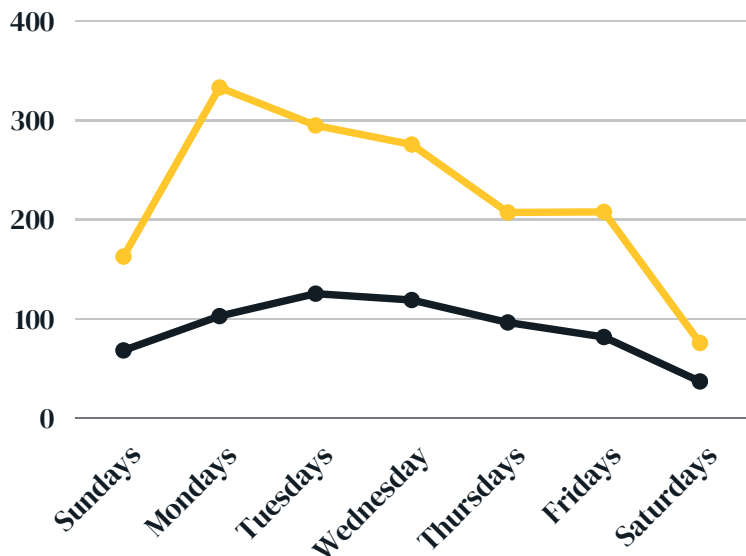

Since opening January 30, through to March 1, we've recorded 2,042 study room checkouts in our library management system!

Service Spotlight: Compact Shelving

Have you visited our new Compact Shelving yet? Located on the Lower Level of Roy O. West Library, these shelves sit on tracks that allow the shelves to move using a manual crank. This allows us to store a large amount of books in a smaller space, while not having to limit our collection. Currently, the library's A-G collection (this includes Philosophy, Psychology, Religion, History, and Geography) is shelved in this area. If you have any questions or requests for assistance, please ask at TheDesk (previously the "circulation desk"), our main point of service, on the first floor of Roy O. West.

Average Number of Circulation Events by Day of the Week

Black: Average number of items checked out by day

Gold: Average number of circulation activities (check ins/outs, holds, renewals, etc.) by day

Meet Adam!

Adam opens the library and gets Roy up and running Monday through Friday! He also helps in the Acquisitions Department, processing purchase orders for collection material and other library needs. A multitasking individual, Adam is great at problem-solving- he has come up with creative solutions to technical problems, organizational conundrums, and sticky note messages! If you get a chance, you can view some of his interests represented by books displayed around his office in Roy O. West: The Beatles, Star Wars, David Lynch, The Simpsons, Proust, and more!
